‘The Bangkok Post’ and ‘The Bangkok Post Student Weekly’

The Bangkok Post is a daily newspaper, which is managed in Thailand and has a most impressive circulation. Reporting and publishing, using innovative methods, have been important to the newspaper. Obviously, the publication of such a daily newspaper like this operates in a very fast-moving and technologically-advanced environment. The staff all have to be committed to working towards deadlines and communicating effectively, both internally and externally. 5

The issue of globalisation – and its pace and impact – was particularly important to Thailand, a country which is still experiencing recovery as a result of the economic crisis that started in 1997. Although there had been some redundancies during the height of the economic crisis, the economy is improving and new staff are currently being recruited.

The company survived the consequences of the economic downturn and produced satisfactory results, with increased revenue indicating the increased confidence of the companies which advertised in the newspaper. Indeed, a sales increase of 12 per cent over the previous year was experienced by the classifieds advertisement section. 10

The launch of a rival paper has had an impact on sales recently. This is a new Thai language newspaper, which is published every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and features work and career tips with 'personnel wanted' and other classified advertisements. 15

The management team has decided to put a clearer focus on the marketing efforts and a firmer emphasis on the spirit of teamwork. Because the economy is improving, advertisers are becoming more demanding, so the company's marketing teams need to be even better equipped to maintain a leadership position in the industry. 20

Recent progress in information technology has been very important, with advances in publishing and printing technology gaining the company a competitive edge.

The Bangkok Post Student Weekly

The Bangkok Post has a sister paper ‘Bangkok Post Student Weekly’ (BPSW). This weekly newspaper has succeeded in making editorial improvement in order to make the BPSW both entertaining and educational. Obviously, the target group for this paper is students and it is hoped that these students will continue to buy the Bangkok Post after they graduate and enter employment. 25

The BPSW aims to contain interesting editorial for students and a number of exciting innovations have been implemented. Its annual Story-writing Contest attracted more than 3,000 entries, and now has been continued on a permanent basis. The Student of the Year contest drew top entries from all over the country, with the overall winner awarded a study trip to England. Regional winners each won a trip to Singapore. Another highly popular activity introduced in 2000 was ‘Meet and Greet’, where Student Weekly Club members enter a contest to get to meet a visiting foreign celebrity, then allow Student Weekly reporters an interview. 30 35

Student Weekly seminars were held for teachers, in the provinces, as well as in Bangkok. The BPSW website went from strength to strength and attracted a large number of visitors, both from Thailand and overseas.

The following table indicates the daily levels of circulation for the Bangkok Post and the weekly circulation figures for the BPSW over the past three years. 40

Table 1 – Circulation levels for The Bangkok Post and The Bangkok Post Student Weekly.

Newspaper	2000	2001	2002
